David Moher founded the Thomas C. Chalmers Centre for Systematic Reviews in January 1998. His leadership in quality issues resulted in the development of the CONSORT standards for good reporting of randomized controlled trials, adopted by approximately 500 health care journals. He is on the editorial board of several medical journals.

Douglas Altman is Director of the Centre for Statistics in Medicine in Oxford and the Medical Statistics Group of Cancer Research UK. He is author of Practical Statistics for Medical Research (1991) and co-editor of Statistics with Confidence (1989 and 2000) and Systematic Reviews in Health Care (1995 and 2001). He is statistical advisor to the Cochrane Collaboration and the British Medical Journal.
